SUBSTANCE USE IN HIGH SCHOOL: TIP OF THE ICEBERG, RITE OF PASSAGE, OR SOMETHING ELSE?

Substance use among adolescents in schools is sometimes the tip of an iceberg. In this workshop we will explore what drugs we are seeing kids use today, the trends in substance use and its prevalence and incidence. Then we will look under water at why they are doing it, who they are, and what are the complicated demands of adolescence today. The workshop will explore some theories of drug use and addiction. It will examine diagnosis and assessment, treatment options, and levels of care. We will briefly consider prevention and how to talk to adolescents about drug and alcohol use.

Jeremy Frank, Ph.D. is a Certified Alcohol and Drug Counselor and Psychologist with a 15-year private practice in Bala Cynwyd focusing primarily on all aspects of addiction and the substance use disorders. Previously, he was a Senior Psychologist at Temple University's Tuttleman Counseling Services, the Assistant Director of the University of Sciences Student Health and Counseling, and a Primary Therapist for Rehab after Work. He is very connected in the Philadelphia region having graduated from Germantown Friends School and Drexel and Hahnemann Universities.

CE CREDITS:

This session is co-sponsored by the Philadelphia Society of Clinical Psychologists (PSCP) and Specialists of Schools. PSCP is approved by the American Psychological Association to offer Continuing Education (CE) for psychologists. PSCP maintains responsibility for the program and its content. This program provides 2 hours of CE credits for licensed Psychologists, Social Workers and Marriage and Family Therapist.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES: Upon completion of this training, participants will be able to:

- describe how addiction is a biosychosocial disease and not a moral defect
- identify current rates of past year drug and alcohol use and some current trends in drug use among 12-17 year olds
- discuss treatment in a larger biosychosocial context in order to consider appropriate supportive risk and protective factors to substance use and recovery

DIRECTIONS: Baldwin is at 701 Montgomery Avenue in Bryn Mawr – on the corner of Morris and Montgomery Avenues. When you go in the main gates, it is the first building where the workshop will be. Park wherever you can, go up the steps and go into the assembly room on the right. Ring the bell if the door is locked; the receptionist will let you in.
